Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 24 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mild, mainly dry and mostly cloudy.

Today:
Mild and mostly overcast on Friday with widespread low cloud and patchy fog. Although most places will remain dry today, some light drizzle is likely in places this morning. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Rain and drizzle spreading northeastwards through the evening, turning persistent across most parts overnight. Remaining mild in the south, but becoming colder across northern areas. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Saturday:
A damp, mostly cloudy Christmas Day for many. Any drizzle tending to fade by midday. Some brighter spells possible across Norfolk, though feeling chilly with a noticeable easterly breeze. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Dull and damp on Boxing Day with a spell of early rain. Generally cloudy Monday and Tuesday with a chance of rain. Winds often light and turning less cold.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.